WELCOME TO BETHLEHEM STEEL

THERE is a fairly well authorized report that no less a concern than the Bethlehem Steel company is interesting itself in the Tonopah district. This is published merely as comment today and not in the news columns, for the story still lacks confirmation. The indications are almost conclusive evidence, however.

Bethlehem Steel is a war widow, one whose grief has been palliated by heavy insurance. Shares in this corporation took a rise like a Zeppelin at the beginning of the war and its plants multiplied, each working twenty-four hours in the day to full capacity.

When the war ends the company will have heavy demands during the period of reconstruction, which will last for many years, and will continue to pay large dividends, but the time of its greatest activity is at present. The company has many millions of money at its disposal and it is seeking or believed to be seeking, to acquire auxiliary concerns, which will be a source of greater profit than the interest that banks would pay, for banks are tiring of paying interest on time deposits. They have too much money now and every ship from abroad brings more golden treasure or more canceled obligations.

It is but natural that Bethlehem Steel should turn to Tonopah, for its business is dealing with metal and it is in adoption of allied art and science that it should engage in its production, the noble as well as the useful metals. Besides is not Charles Schwab, of Bethlehem Steel, one of the heavy investors in Tonopah? The Bonanza hopes to have a news story along these lines shortly, but at present it can merely presage and comment.

MUCH DESIRED, LITTLE EXPECTED

THE president again has congress on his hands and the country still has the president on its hands. But, thank the Lord, this is the last Democratic president and the last Democratic congress with which we will be afflicted for at least a quarter of a century.

Were it not for the war, which has given a stimulation to certain industries in the United States, the government would be bankrupt through the operation of the Democratic tariff bill.

This session of congress, opening today, could accomplish much for the country, but little is expected, because of its political complexion and because of the inanity of the administrative powers. It could enact a tariff law that would be almost prohibitive and thus save our industries. It could pass an immigration law that would save to American workers their wage scale and eliminate the unemployed. It is one of the most critical moments in the history of this nation, a time when decisive action should be taken, but the present administration and the present congress are not likely to act. Perhaps it will not be too late, should the war continue another year or two, to have the incoming Republican president and Republican congress take steps to save the American people against grave distress, but even at that the Democracy in power is implored to take remedial steps.

AFTER MARCH 4, 1917

THERE are millions of German-Americans in the United States, both naturalized and native born but of Teutonic extraction. Of these multitudes there are but a scant few that would vote for President Wilson if he were to be a candidate for re-election. His pro-British tendencies are too pronounced. Witness the difference in the tone of his notes to England and those to Germany. The former are pacificatory and pleading, the latter bitter and threatening.

It is true that both nations have offended most seriously since the beginning of the war, the Germans by destroying vessels carrying Americans, the British by seizing ships and cargoes that were American owned and engaged in peaceful commerce. Yet the friendship of one nation was sought and the enmity of another was engendered. President Wilson might as well resign himself right now to the prospect of shortly making of his life a specialty in cannibality.

When the silver set for the superdreadnought Nevada comes to Tonopah it should be made the occasion for a great public function, even greater than when the battleflags were brought to this city. The mines of Tonopah produce and donated the refined silver that went into its construction and there is a sort of feeling of proprietorship in the service until it is presented to the battleship.

By what means will the governor remove the Nevada building from the Panama-Pacific exposition to Reno? It is only a concoction of plaster and lath and was built for temporary purposes. The material it contains would scarcely pay for the wrecking and the transportation and reconstruction would cost the state more than the erection of a new building on the university campus.

A man who invested $1,000 in the moving picture business a few years ago, died last week leaving an estate of $1,500,000. This reads like a twentieth century Arabian Nights romance. There are greater opportunities today than ever before for the acquisition of sudden and substantial fortune.

The initials, "P. P. I. E.", which were used to brief the name of the great fair which closed Saturday, night, in the opinion of the Bonanza, be adopted as a permanent slogan for the United States. They might also stand for Prosperity, Peace, Independence, Equality.

Twenty-five boys in the California reform school will receive paroles as Christmas gifts. In Nevada the lads that are sent to the industrial institution have the habit of paroling themselves.

CLIPPED AND CREDITED

Senator O'Gorman says that the next postmaster of New York should be a capable Democrat, but as the old farmer observed "there ain't no sich animal."—Boston Transcript.

No matter what other opinion you may have of the Chicago baby case, you must admit Dr. Halseiden to fame as the physician who had a chance to operate and didn't.—Kansas City Star.

In searching for the causes that are driving the laboring people of England to hard drink Lloyd George should not overlook the war poetry of Wm. Watson—Wichita (Kans.) Beacon.

We see by the papers that almost sixty towns elected Republican coroners as a stinging rebuke to the administration's handling of the Mexican situation.—Columbia State.

A magazine article enumerates as the uses of mint, boiling with potatoes and flavoring lemonade. In former days, there was another use, which is probably now classed as obsolete, and we understand from some fellows who have
